The wedding of Miss Eleanor Laird Hastings, daughter of Mrs. George R. Read by a former marriage, to Francis E. Storer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Storer of Ridgefield, Conn., and this city, took place at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in St. Thomas's Church, the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of the church, officiating.

The bride entered the church with her stepfather, George R. Read, who gave her away. She wore a gown of white satin almost entirely covered with old point lace and embellished with orange blossoms and finished with a wide sash of white satin. A long court train of white satin faced with cloth of silver and edged with old point lace fell from the shoulders and over it the bride wore a veil of tulle and point lace that was held in place by a spray of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Among her ornaments was a diamond necklace and pendant.

Mrs. William Kingsland Macy was the matron of honor and Miss Fanny de Groot Hastings, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were the Misses Isabel Foote, Alice Haven, Ruth Adams, Dorothy Legs Howard, Edna Biddle and Jean Kerr. They were dressed alike in costumes of apricot satin charmeuse veiled with tulle of a bronse shade and they carried bouquets of yellow

In the evening Ethel Leads, pianist, and Marie Caslova, violinist, gave a concert in the same hall. The chief offering was a sonata in D minor by Christian Sinding Lisa. was a sonata in D minor by Christian Sinding. It is the composer's ninety-ninth work and bears the explanatory sub-title "In the Old Style." Sinding is a pleasing composer and has written some agreeable music. The sonata heard last evening might easily have raised some questions. For example, there was room for speculation as to what the composer meant by the "old style," for his music might have been written at any other transfer of the study of illumination, in which he became expert. He arranged the lighting in the new Senate office Building in Washington, D. C., and did similar work to office For example, there was room for speculation as to what the composer meant by the "old style," for his music might have been written at any time since Mendels, sohn, but surely not as far back as the period of Beethoven. Nor could it be regarded as a matter of significance when it was written, since it proved to be of extremely slight texture, wanting in melodic invention and ingenuity of development.
